

DEPUTY CHIEF FOR INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY CRIME
COMPUTER CRIME AND INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY SECTION
CRIMINAL DIVISION
U.S. DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
WASHINGTON, DC
05-CRM-CCIPS-002

About the Office:

The employees of the Computer Crime and Intellectual Property Section ("CCIPS") focus on issues raised by computer and intellectual property crime. CCIPS lawyers do a range of case and policy work both domestically and internationally. This work includes: conducting investigations and litigating cases; advising federal prosecutors and law enforcement agents; commenting upon and proposing legislation; coordinating international efforts to combat computer crime and intellectual property crime; training law enforcement groups; and addressing non-governmental parties with a stake in these issues.

Areas of expertise possessed by CCIPS attorneys include computer hacker investigations, intellectual property crimes (copyright piracy, trademark counterfeiting, and theft of trade secrets), criminal misuse of emerging technologies, electronic privacy laws, and search and seizure of computers. For more information about the Section and its work, see the CCIPS Website at: www.cybercrime.gov.

Responsibilities and Opportunity Offered: The Computer Crime and Intellectual Property Section is seeking an experienced attorney with supervisory and management skills to serve as the Deputy Chief for Intellectual Property Crime.

The Deputy Chief reports to the Chief of the Section and serves as the direct supervisor for twelve to fourteen of the Section's attorneys who specialize in the enforcement of criminal laws protecting intellectual property. The Deputy will bear responsibility for developing the Section's intellectual property crime program, which includes investigative and prosecutive practice in consort with the U.S. Attorneys' Offices; adopting policy to counteract the growth of intellectual property crime, especially online copyright piracy; contributing to the development of sound legislation; and furthering the U.S. Government efforts to combat other types of intellectual property crime, include theft of trade secrets. In addition, the Deputy will have responsibility for the Section's international intellectual property crime program, including operational, training, and diplomatic efforts abroad.

The Deputy will supervise the attorneys in this group to execute work requirements effectively; clarify roles and responsibilities (including the intra-team balance of responsibilities); monitor the effectiveness of the team as a whole and the individuals that comprise it and make adjustments as necessary; motivate others to do their best work and delegate appropriate levels of responsibility and control; share information and foster communication, teamwork, and problem-solving both within the team and across the Section; actively support the career development of subordinates and seek opportunities to help them stretch their skills and enhance their professional standing; inspire trust and confidence; and provide specific coaching/feedback on subordinates' performances (positive and negative) in concrete ways that reinforce good performances and improve deficiencies.

The Deputy will also assist and support the Chief in leading and managing the Section and in representing it to other agencies, branches, countries, the private sector, and the press.
